

'Bachtold Annexation' makes little sense

UB 4-14-19
Three hundred ninety homes on a 100-acre tract of prime land with a magnificent view of the Blue Mountains? What municipal governing body in its right mind would approve such a housing development?

Given the infrastructure required, each lot would be less than one-quarter acre, barely enough space for the footprint of a home. How aesthetically pleasing could such a home in such a development be anyway?

Those who live in the vicinity of the "Bachtold Annexation," and any other citizen of Walla Walla who finds this development repugnant, should band together and voice their opposition to the Walla Walla City Council via a petition signed by as many home/landowners as possible. Organize Walla Wallans and defeat the "Bachtold Annexation."
